A SERIES OF NARRATIVES.

In 1 vol. 16mo, with a Spirited Idustration. Price $1.25. To record the sirgular incidents that occurred around me, and sketch the suitking his orise which awasened my interest, was a favorite employment duting a professional career of nice year. Out of the many coine of webs of life thus collected the narratives that compose this writ me are woven. Fiction has ent but few embeliabing touchas. Truth is left to proclaim her own strangeness. Should this work achieve the object contemplated, its readers will receive a mire correct impression of some unisurated abovers for the public amusement than is generally entertained. Between them and the very-day word the curtain of prejudice has faile in in impenetrable folia. From its intail absolute the same who e imb to the highest pinnadic of fame emerge. Yet among the most lovely of this proscribed bend there are many whose lives bear witness that Heaven plants its flowers and scatters in partie in merapseted places. Look for them you who jadge read y before you pranounce that they have no existence there. Anna CORA RITCHIE.

"The work is a sort of sequel to the Autohography—embodying much that cuid to twell be included in that volume—and castle g a this vail of fiction over scenes and characters, the dates and names of which could not be given without wounding the feelings of living persons. We will only remark that every narrative in this volume is not merely 'funneded on fact, batts, its many past, literally frue. The denoments and the leading incidents are tree without an exception, and the principal characters will be recognized by many who have known who eminate. The work is destined to a populariy equal if not superior to that of the Aut bidgraph; for it is not a muchie romanos, spun from a movaid brain, like too many of the fe utnine novels frue woman and

With the January number commences the seventh volume of Potram's Manchly. The consantly increasing circulation of the Magazine, and the hearity sympathy with which the efforts of the publishers have been repeated by the public, simulate them to numerated efforts to a ninue and deserve the success which they have achieved. It is the aim of the Magazine to furnish the greatest variety of popular literary entertsionment; to criticise politics and society from the most monly and generous point of view; to tell the turth show books and men so far as they are properly subjects of public notice; to present the most spirited and accurate sketches of travel and personal adventure; to discuss science in all its popular bearings; and in general, to make itself the vehicle of the best observations upon all cit-important and national interests. This will always be done by this best talent in the country, and honesity, but it cunnot always be done without offense. Putnem's Monthly is neither a story-book nor a partisan journe'. It has opinions and principles. It seeks to sinuse and instruct; but it hopse, also, to be feat as the friend of scord novais, sound learning, and the most liberal and excest discussion.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR CHILDREN.

A History of her Life, in a series of six beautiful Figures, from new and exquisite designs, printed in oil colors, in the best style of the art. With poetical descriptions.

"Mesers Crosby, Nichols & Co., Boston, have published a series of beautiful des gas, printed in oil colors, with an accompanying story is veize, enthied 'Fanny Gray,' which give the history of ber life, which the exquisite figures are designed to illustrate. Little Fanny is presented in six different characters, once she was a cot'age girl and had a happy home, walch locks very attractive in the picture; then fortune frowned and she became a wanderer and sold matches, till kind-bearted 'Farmer Weston' took her home where she fed his chickets, and gathered the wife flawers from hill and moor, till in her character of flower-girl she is discovered by her rich uncle, who makes her his pet and a little lady; all of which may be tastafully shown by figures as the story proceeds. The whole is one of the nestest and most delightful gifts for chi dres that we have ever rece."

CATHARINE II. OF RUSSIA.

"The history of Cathatine II. is one of remarkable events, and quite opportune at the present moment, as the public are much interested in Russian history. Her history comprises that of a wife plotting successfully against her busband, and that hashand a king; and we at once see a nation rocked by bearmails, hard a king; and we at once see a nation rocked by bearmails, into disrepute in quick succession. Marriage intrigues, secret it quisitions and state conspiracies follow fast on each other, and then give way to momentary peace; and war following peace at discourages sweeping in the track of war and breeding discontent and fanaticism that rock the tirone, are the incidents that this bistory brings to view. The varied it citents that Cabarine II. passed through proved her to be a lady of remartable talent. She was t uly as 'craity as a king,' and cunning as the occasion demanded."
